

Meet Alexis D. Furze, M.D., FACS

Alexis D. Furze, M.D., FACS, is a California board-certified facial plastic and reconstructive surgeon who specializes in the treatment of the ears, nose, and throat.

As a recipient of a prestigious post-residency fellowship at the University of California, Irvine, Dr. Furze completed extensive training in both aesthetic and functional nasal and sinus surgery.

Dr. Furze has since performed more than 10,000 nasal procedures, treating patients who are suffering from nasal and sinus disorders, from cases of acute sinusitis triggered by an infection to more challenging issues related to chronic sinusitis and anatomical issues.

His techniques for rhinoplasty, septoplasty, sinus surgery, and nose reconstruction are based on minimally-invasive procedures that result in less trauma to surrounding tissues, quicker recovery and reduction in pain, bruising and swelling.

As a facial plastic surgeon, he uses an aesthetic approach that focuses on sculpting natural-looking noses, customized to each patient's facial features and ethnicity. He also emphasizes the natural look for his patients who desire facelifts, both surgical and non-surgical. Dr. Furze says the goal of a facelift is to provide a more youthful, refreshed appearance.

Dr. Furze divides his time between his Newport Beach and Rancho Cucamonga offices.
